DETAILED ACTION

Response to Arguments

1. The objections to Claims 3, 5, and 6 are withdrawn. As to the rejections of Claims 1-10, Applicant's arguments filed April 25, 2006 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. The rejections of Claims 1-10 under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are maintained for the reasons of record. Applicant argues that the Sorkin reference does not show two types of absorbent articles having different physical properties or structures, but only articles differing in color. However, color is a physical property. Page 4 of the specification provides a list of examples of physical properties or structures. Although color does not appear on the list, it is clear that the list provided is not intended to be exhaustive. Although some differences in color may relate only to aesthetics, differences in color sometimes do make a difference in the functionality of a device. This is confirmed by the Nelson reference, which uses color coding to differentiate items and avoid confusion.
2. Applicant also argues that Miller and Nelson are not analogous art and do not teach disposable absorbent product packages, but rather teach dispensing devices. The features upon which Applicant relies are not recited in the rejected claims. The claims do not contain any limitations which differentiate packages from dispensing devices. These categories overlap to a considerable extent. Products are frequently shipped in boxes which are intended to be opened and used as dispensing devices in a retail store; are such boxes packages, or are they dispensing devices? The Nelson reference, in particular, appears to teach precisely such a use. This is confirmed by Applicant's Claim 5, which teaches that the claimed package has an opening device through which the user can pick up absorbent articles; the claim does not contain any limitations which differentiate this use from the dispensing of articles. Applicant's invention teaches a means for dispensing absorbent articles. The claims do not require that the absorbent articles be dispensed one at a time, or that the individual absorbent articles are not themselves wrapped or packaged; in fact, Applicant's Claim 8 requires that the articles be wrapped. The claims do not require that the opening device is separate from the window, or that the window must be a continuous single opening and may not have partitions within it. Although the claims are interpreted in light of the specification, limitations from the specification are not read into the claims. See In re Van Geuns, 988 F.2d 1181, 26 USPQ2d 1057 (Fed. Cir. 1993).

Conclusion

3. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
